

You are invited to a special screening of the award-winning new film

In the Light of Reverence documents Native American struggles to protect landscapes of spiritual significance. The film tells the stories of three communities and places they care for: the Lakota at Devils Tower in Wyoming, the Hopi in the Four Corners area of the Southwest, and the Wintu at Mt. Shasta in California. Narrated by Peter Coyote and Tantoo Cardinal, the film explores obstacles to religious freedom for land-based practitioners and impacts on sacred sites that range from mining and ski resorts to New Age practices and rock-climbing.

“This beautifully-crafted film is a wake-up call for everyone who cares about the environment and human rights.” –ROBERT REDFORD

Don't miss the national PBS broadcast on POV on Tuesday, August 14, 2001 at 10 PM (check local listings).

In the Light of Reverence is a presentation of the Independent Television Service in association with Native American Public Telecommunications with funding provided by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Produced and directed by Christopher McLeod • Co-produced by Malinda Maynor
Sacred Land Film Project • P.O. Box C-151, La Honda, CA 94020 USA

tel: 650-747-0685 • fax: 650-747-0750 • e-mail: slfp@igc.org • www.sacredland.org • a project of Earth Island Institute
Distributed by Bullfrog Films 1-800-543-3764